Bachendri Pal is most likely the first name children encounter in their textbooks when learning about women's empowerment. She did not just break the glass ceiling for women in Indian mountaineering. She also founded an organization where she assumed leadership of those who aspired to follow in her footsteps. Bachendri Pal created history by becoming the first Indian woman to climb Mount Everest, the highest peak in the world. Just one day before her birthday, the Indian mountaineer achieved this feat and became an iconic symbol of leadership and women empowerment. Eyes shining with grit, courage, and perseverance, she didn't hold back and etched her name in history by scaling the 8,848m of feat and renowned herself as the first Indian woman to climb Mt. Everest. Mad4India brings the ever-changing story of Bachendri Pal, the Indian mountaineer who made history decades back by carving herself as the first Indian woman to climb the world's highest peak - Mt. Everest. Image Source - Instagram Born on 24 May 1954, in Nakuru village, Uttarkashi district, Uttarakhand, Bachendri Pal is an Indian mountaineer. She inscribed her name on 23 May 1984, creating history by becoming the first Indian female to scale Mt. Everest. Bachendri Pal was born to a simple and loving family of Hansa Devi and Shri Kishan Singh Pal. His father used to supply groceries from India to Tibet as he was a border tradesman. She was born just five days before the anniversary of the ascension of Mt. Everest by Edmund Hillary and Tenzing Norgay. Back in the day, girls were deprived of education, but despite the breakthroughs, Pal did her schooling. Though her parents thought she will study till the 10th as she was a bright child, her school principal insisted that she continue her studies. Later on, Bachendri Pal completed her academics from D.A.V. Post Graduate College, Dehradun in M.A. and B.Ed. Image Source - Instagram When she was 12 years old, her passion for mountaineering elicited her. She went on a school picnic along with her friends where Bachendri Pal scaled a 13,123 ft high peak. During her course at Nehru Institute of Mountaineering, she entitled herself as the first female in 1982 to climb Mount Gangotri 23,419 ft and Mount Rudragaria 19,091 ft. Throughout her career, she became an instructor and a leading advisor at NAF - National Adventure Foundation - an organization to train women in learning mountaineering. Journey to Mt. Everest Image Source - Instagram Bachendri Pal engraved her name and made the country proud, but her journey was not easy. She had to face her friends and family's revelation when she chose the career in mountaineering. Pal climbed and soon found success in her name after summiting small peaks. In 1984, she joined India's first mixed-gender to attempt an expedition to Mount Everest 1984. In 1984, when India scheduled its fourth expedition to Mt. Everest, christened 'Everest 84'. It was India's mixed-gender team with two groups - members of 6 women and 11 men to ascend the peak. Bachendri pal was a member of the forward group. Her team almost met with a disaster that left many, including her, but she didn't quit. When Bachendri Pal saw Mt. Everest for the first time, she was awe-inspired at how spectacular it was. On 23 May 1984, the groups reached the summit of Mt. Everest, and Bachendri Pal created history. She achieved the milestone one day before her 30th birthday. Image Source - Wikipedia Coming from a small town, Bachendri Pal believed she was blessed with a good fortune to have Tata Steel as her backer. She joined Tata Steel before her adventure to the peak, and after she returned, she was welcomed by a new department (Tata Youth Adventure Centre, TYAC) that was created for her. She was awarded the third-highest civilian award Padma Bhushan in 2013 by the Government of India. She is exemplary for women as she continues to inspire them by training them in mountaineering. She has been active after ascending the highest peak and has been a part of many movements and groups that inspires people to climb. The confidence, goal, and courage of Bachendri Pal gave to many youngsters in this field is immense. Mad4India wishes a blooming journey and aspires to cover such women-empowerment stories. Indian mountaineer Bachendri Pal Personal information Main discipline Mountaineer and Promoter for Adventure Born (1954-05-24) 24 May 1954 (age 68) Nakuru village , Uttarkashi district, Uttarakhand, India Nationality Indian Careers Starting discipline Instructor - National Adventure Foundation [1] Chief of Tata Steel Adventure Foundation (since 1984) [2] Notable ascents First Indian woman to reach the summit of Mount Everest in 1984 [3] Bachendri Pal (born 24 May 1954) is an Indian mountaineer, who in 1984 [3] [4] became the first Indian woman to reach the summit of Mount Everest. [3] She was awarded the third highest civilian award Padma Bhushan by Government of India in 2019. [5] Early life Bachendri Pal was born to a Bhotiya family on 24 May 1954 in Nakuru village, in the Uttarkashi district in the Indian state of Uttarakhand. She was one of five children to Hansa Devi, and Shri Kishan Singh Pal, - a border tradesman who supplied groceries from India to Tibet. She was born only five days prior to the first anniversary of the original ascension of Mount Everest by Tenzing Norgay and Edmund Hillary. She completed her M.A. and B.Ed. from D.A.V. Post Graduate College, Dehradun. She started mountaineering at the age of 12 when, along with her friends, she scaled a 13,123 ft (3,999.9 m) high peak during a school picnic. On the invitation of her school principal, she was sent to college for higher studies and, during her course at Nehru Institute of Mountaineering, became the first female to climb Mount Gangotri 23,419 ft (7,138.1 m) and Mount Rudragaria 19,091 ft (5,818.9 m) in 1982. In that time, she became an instructor at the National Adventure Foundation (NAF), which had set up an adventure school for training women to learn mountaineering. [1] Pal encountered stiff opposition from her family and relatives when she chose a career as a professional mountaineer rather than a schoolteacher. However, she soon found success in her chosen field when, after submitting a number of smaller peaks, she was selected to join India's first mixed-gender team to attempt an expedition to Mount Everest in 1984. [3] Ascent In 1984, India scheduled its fourth expedition to Mount Everest, christened "Everest '84". Bachendri Pal was selected as one of the members of the group of six Indian women and eleven men to attempt the ascent of Mount Everest (Sagarmatha in Nepalese). The team was flown to Kathmandu, the capital of Nepal, in March 1984, and from there the team moved onwards. Recalling her first glimpse of Mount Everest, Bachendri reminisced, "We, the hill people, have always worshipped the mountains... my overpowering emotion at this awe-inspiring spectacle was, therefore, devotional." [6] The team commenced its ascent in May 1984. Her team almost met disaster when an avalanche buried its camp, and more than half the group abandoned the attempt because of injury or fatigue. Bachendri Pal and the remainder of the team pressed on to reach the summit [3] Bachendri Pal recalled, "I was sleeping in one of the tents with my teammates at Camp III at an altitude of 24,000 ft (7,315.2 m). On the night of 15-16 May 1984, at around 00:30 hours IST, I was jolted awake; something had hit me hard; I also heard a deafening sound and soon after I found myself being enveloped within a very cold mass of material." [6] On 22 May 1984, Ang Dorje (the Sherpa sirdar) and some other climbers joined the team to ascend to the summit of Mount Everest; Bachendri was the only woman in the group. They reached the South Col and spent the night there at Camp IV at the altitude of 26,000 ft (7,924.8 m). At 6:20 a.m. on 23 May 1984, they continued the ascent, climbing "vertical sheets of frozen ice"; cold winds were blowing at the speed of about 100 kilometres per hour (62 mph) and temperatures touching -30 to -40 °C (-22 to -40 °F). On 23 May 1984, the team reached the summit of Mount Everest at 1:07 p.m. and Bachendri Pal created history. [7] She achieved this feat on the day before her 30th birthday, and six days before the 31st anniversary of the first ascension of Mount Everest. After Bachendri Pal continued to be active after ascending the highest peak in the world. She successfully led: An "Indo-Nepalese Women's Mount Everest Expedition - 1993" team comprising only women, which set benchmarks for Indian mountaineering when 18 people reached the summit including 7 women. [8] All women team of rafters in "The Great Indian Women's Rafting Voyage - 1994", which had 18 women in 3 rafts. It was a pioneering effort by women in successfully completing the journey in the river Ganges from Haridwar to Calcutta, covering 2,155 km (1,339 mi) in 39 days. [3] The "First Indian Women Trans-Himalayan Expedition - 1997", which was an effort by 8 women, who completed the trekking journey from the eastern part of the Himalayas from Arunachal Pradesh to the western part of the Himalayas at Siachen Glacier reaching Indira Col - the northernmost tip of India at the altitude of 20,100 ft (6,126.5 m), covering more than 4,500 km (2,800 mi) in 225 days by crossing more than 40 high Mountain passes. This is the first success by any country. [3] [8] [9] Social service Bachendri Pal, along with Premalata Agarwal and a group of ace climbers including the Mount Everest summiteers, arrived in Uttarkashi and carried out relief and rescue operations in the remotest high altitude villages of the Himalayas that had been ravaged in the 2013 North India floods. [10] Awards and accolades President Ram Nath Kovind presenting the Padma Bhushan Award to Bachendri Pal, at an Investiture Ceremony, at Rashtrapati Bhavan, in New Delhi on 16 March 2019 Bachendri Pal has been conferred with following awards and accolades: [8] [11] Gold Medal for Excellence in Mountaineering by the Indian Mountaineering Foundation (1984) Padma Shri - the fourth highest civilian award of the Republic of India (1984) Gold Medal by the Department of Education, Government of Uttar Pradesh, India (1985) Arjuna Award by the Government of India (1986) Calcutta Ladies Study Group Award (1986) Listed in the Guinness Book of World Records (1990) National Adventure Award by the Government of India (1994) [12] Yash Bharti Award by the Government of Uttar Pradesh, India (1995) Honorary Doctorate from the Hemwati Nandan Bahuguna Garhwal University (formerly known as Garhwal University) (1997) She is the first recipient of the Virangana Lakshmbai Rashtriya Samman 2013-14, which was given by the Ministry of Culture, Government of Madhya Pradesh, India at Gwalior on 18 June 2013 for her personal achievement in adventure sports and women's upliftment in the country.
